

FRANSISCO BARROSO

Professor Francisco Barroso is Associate Professor and Coordinator of Graduate Programs at the Higher Institute of Political and Administrative Sciences of the School of Law and Political Sciences at USEK. He holds a PhD in Political Science with specialization in the field of security and defense studies. Professor Barroso has extensive experience in teaching and research at an international level, and delivers different graduate courses on geopolitics, strategy security, defense and diplomacy in the master programs organized by the Higher Institute of Political and Administrative Sciences. Likewise, he runs regular workshops and supervises master theses. His areas of focus include security and defense policies, critical geopolitics, geostrategy, insurgency, para-diplomacy, foreign policy analysis, political violence, and the transformation of the military and security fields.

He is the author of several peer reviewed papers and chapters of books on Geopolitics of Lebanon and the Middle East. His latest paper entitled "Lebanon confronts partition fears: has consociationalism benefitted minorities?", coauthored with Dr. Joseph A. Kechichian. The paper was published in the Contemporary Review of the Middle East (Sage Journals), Vol.5, N°1, pp.1-25, 2018.